Artist Statement

Libby Dyer is an Intuitive Alcohol ink artist inspired by both nature and wellness. Her art channels many of her emotions and memories. Libby's work moves from the internal and personal, to the external world of nature and the different parts and elements of it.

Libby's artwork concentrates on the practice of mindfulness, planting the seeds of joy and happiness for our tomorrow's. In support and awareness of mental health, Libby wishes to connect to those who need a little bit of positivity in their lives.

"Anthophilia- The Love of Flowers" exhibits the dynamic and vibrancy and colours of florals.

The word "anthophile" is derived from the Greek words "anthos," meaning flower, and "philos," meaning lover or friend. Literally translated, Anthophilia refers to a deep appreciation or love for flowers. It's a term that beautifully captures the wonder and admiration we feel when we encounter the delicate petals, vibrant colours, and intricate designs of blossoms.

Mindfulness involves a non-judgmental, present-focused, moment-to-moment awareness of both our physical and mental states. It encourages us to be fully present in the here and now, without getting caught up in past regrets or future worries.

So how does mindfulness intersect with anthophilia?

When we appreciate flowers, we immerse ourselves in their exquisiteness. We notice the details—the velvety texture, the symmetry and even the fragrance. This act of mindful observation allows us to fully experience the present moment.

Mindfulness encourages us to step back from our habitual thought patterns and self-referential narratives. We gaze upon a flower and momentarily let go of our worries, inner self talk and judgments. We literally become absorbed in the simple act of seeing, smelling and feeling the flower.

Anthophilia and mindfulness share common ground in their focus on the present moment, sensory awareness, and emotional well-being. So, while you explore and encounter the artworks of Libby Dyer, take a mindful pause, and let each exquisite detail fill your awareness.

Having relocated from the Gold Coast in April of 2023, Libby and her loving husband have settled in nicely in the small town of Huonville, participating in the Huon Valley Studio Arts Trail of October 2023. When not out and about exploring what the picturesque Huon Valley has to offer as inspiration, you will find her happily creating new works in her home studio.

Chosen as one of 57 finalists for The Henry Jones Art Prize 2023, Libby's art adorns the walls in homes and businesses all over Australia as well as Japan, Singapore, Denmark, Norway, Germany, Norway, America, United Kingdom, and Switzerland. Libby has also had artwork featured on the television series "The Block" back in 2019 and featured in many publications including Home Design Magazines & Art Edit Magazine. Libby has been fortunate enough to have been a finalist in many group exhibitions and prizes.
